LEFT TO THEIR FATE,

The friends of Denis J. Buckley, the convicted Tammany election inspector of the Eighteenth Election District of the Second Assembly District, who is how serving a year's sentence in the mitentiary on Blackwell's Island, are, s one of them said, "very sore at the throw-down given him by the bosses." John Dunphy and Denis J. Buckley stays were secured for Neville and Dunphy in the Supreme Court pending appeals for new trials.

It was not so with Buckley, however, for the day following his sentence he was taken to the penitentiary.

The "cason for this is said to be that Buckley had decided not to suffer in silence the ignomy of his conviction, and had threatened to "tell what he knew and see if he couldn't get some of the men who had promised him protection imprisoned with him."

Information of Buckley's determination to take the tell of the decided to send him "over the road" and not give him a chance to do his talking. At least that is the statement that is being openly made now.

Information reached "The Evening World" yesterday from a friend of Buckley's, and a man of some prominence in Tammany Hail, that Buckley swould be glad to tell all he knows of the election frauds, giving the names of the men from whom he received his instructions, and exactly what his instructions were.

"Evening World" reporter visited

Buckley.

"No, sir; you cannot see Buckley," said the Warden. "It is one of the rules of this prison that is never violated that prisoners cannot be interviewed by reporters."

"The New York Branch of the National GranteCutters' Union held a big bail at Clarendon Hall ist night. Delegations were present from Connecticut, Woodlawn, Jersey City and Staten Island, and the National Union was represented by a committee.

"But. Warden, I have myself interviewed prisoners here."
"Oh, well, in some cases we may have made exceptions, but you cannot see i Buckley. Just because a man is a prisoner I do not think it right that he should be forced to submit to an interview."

oner I do not think it right that he should be forced to submit to an interview."

"The Evening World' simply desires to give an opportunity to Buckley to do what he is reported to have expressed a desire to do," said the reporter.

"Well, you cannot see him," said Mr. Pilsbury emphatically.

"Will you take a message to him requesting an interview and let him settle the matter according to his own wishes?" persisted the reporter.

"No, I will not. No one can see Buckley, not even his parents, until he has been here four weeks. Then his family can see him at intervals of four weeks.

"Buckley is being treated just the same as the poorest devil that comes here. He was put to work in the tailor shop on the day of his arrival."

The reporter then told Warden Pilsbury of the information that had reached "The Evening World."

"Oh, that is nonsense," said the Warden. "Buckley came here at once because he wished to begin serving his sentence and not waste time making a legal fight."

"Of one thing "The Evening World."

"Of one thing 'The Evening World' may be sure. Buckley has done no talking to outsiders since he has been here, and he will not get a chance to talk to reporters until he has served his sen-

It is on the ground floor of the new part of the prison, and is by no means as pleasant, if that tword can be used in connection with any of the cells, as some of the others. Dunphy was sitting on the end of the bed, with his head buried in his hands. He refused even to come to the cell door to see the reporter.

'I haven't got anything to say to the papers now," he called out from where he sat, without raising his head.

Neville sat on the side of the little prison bed, with a sheet of paper on his knee, and with a little short stub of a lead pencil was trying to write a letter. The light was so dim that the task was evidently a difficult one.

When called he arose and came to the cell door.

"I won't say anything to the papers suit now," he said.

Moulders Win Without Striking. (By Associated Press.)

CLEVELAND, Feb. 22.—Twelve foundry firms of this city have decided to withdraw the proposed 10 per cent. reduction in their employees' wages, and the big moulders' strike which was expected to take place will not occur. Two firms asked for further time to consider the matter, while two other firms—the Lake Shore Foundry Company and Bowler & Co., insist on the cut going into effect at once. A strike has been declared at the two establishments named.

The National Amateur Skating Association will make another effort to pull off the championships. The events will be held at Manhattan Field to-morrow afternoon if ice can be had; if not they will be postponed until a favorable time. On Saturday afternoon Johnson and others will skate against time.

The final series of the American Amateur Bowling Union tournament was continued at Montgomery's alleys, in Newark, last night. The competing clubs were New Jersey, New York and Ivanhoe. Each of the teams won one game, and at the end of the night's work honors were even.

SEASONABLE FABRICS HALFPRICE

Metropolian Dry-Goods Co.'s Stock. The beginning of the sale yesterday in Ludwig Bros.' store, on Fourteenth street, near Sixth avenue, of the Metro-politan Dry-Goods Company's immense stock was a great success in spite of the The spacious establishment was packed up to closing time with eager purchasers, who were not slow to take advantage of the excellent opportunity the sale affords of getting seasonable goods of the best manufacture at half price.

Ludwig Bros. were able to get the stock at specially givantageous rates owing to the retirement from business of the Metropolitan Dry-Goods Company, which was the successor of James Wardlaw & Co., and was located at Nos. 40 and 42 Walker street. Throughout its long existence the Company ranked high among the leading jobbers in the trade and the advantage of the sale is further shown in the fact that all of the goods were manufactured for this season for high-class customers.
